

Are some vendors favoured?

We absolutely DO NOT bias search results toward our partners

The data speaks for itself and good reagents and model systems rise to the top because they tend to be used more often.

BenchSci is proud to be vendor-agnostic. You can trust that we let the data drive how things are presented on the platform – products and figures are ranked by the amount of data that support them. We want researchers' decisions to be unbiased, informed by the science and data because those are what's important.
